

Darwin Rogers

Today, Paul, Mr. Yoshimori, and I went to a tea spot that is owned by Mr. Sugiura High school friend, which was passed down to him from his father, who owned the tea spot for almost 60 years. We tried almost four different teas from green tea to black tea which was very awesome and good. He showed us the proper way to make tea by having different steps and how much water to use to make tea. We also had ice cream which was very good and talked about football and where the natural tea was from throughout the west of Japan. We also learned about how long it take to pick out the green tea and black tea. Last at least we ate green tea with soy sauce which was very good eating.